Music Library System

Designs that save space and headaches.

You know how fast sheet music eats up space. If you're an average band, orchestra, or choir with 1,000 titles, you'll need more than ten 4-drawer file cabinets that take up 13½' (4m) of wall space. But Wenger's innovative Music Library system stores approximately that same amount of music in a single design that takes up only 5'8" (173cm) of wall space. It's the most space-efficient long-term music storage system ever.

The Wenger system is so fast and easy that you'll save hours of searching. You simply pull out individual units to reveal an entire wall of music at your fingertips. And the shelves are adjustable, so you can conveniently store sheet music for choral, instrumental, and choral octavos and marching band — even lesson books and compilations — all in the same easy-to-use unit. Call to reclaim your valuable floor space and get rid of those unsightly filing cabinets today.

The Wenger Music Sorting Rack. It keeps your music organized — and you sane.

Just about the time you get everything organized right, somebody comes along and puts their music away wrong. Keeping titles sorted and put away in score order can be maddening, unless you're assisted by Wenger's new Music Sorting Rack. With 46 slots identified by instrument, your students can put music away or pass it out in a hurry.

BEFORE

An average-size music program needs as many as 10 four-drawer file cabinets — that take up 13½' (4m) feet of wall space — just to accommodate 1,000 titles.

AFTER

But Wenger's slide-out-shelf design lets you store those same 1,000 titles in a 4-unit system that takes up only 5'8" (173cm) of wall space.
