

SYMPHONY CHAIR

The professional's first chair:

The ultimate extension of our patented music posture chair design is the result of years of research with professional musicians. It was designed and built to alleviate the often chronic problems associated with the physical demand of professional musicians.

The angle and shape of the seat and back provide the musician with optimum playing posture and comfort. The resulting angle between seat and back simulates a natural standing posture. This allows the diaphragm to work as it was intended for greater lung capacity and better breath support.

The back provides full support with a built-in lumbar curve yet is shaped to allow unrestricted upper body movement. Add an optional, adjustable lumbar pad for additional lower back support or a more forward seating position.

The seat contour and angle along with a rolled-off front edge provide good under-thigh support without building pressure points. A unique seat angle adjustment lets the musician fine-tune the chair to suit the posture requirement of the instrument or for individual posture preference.

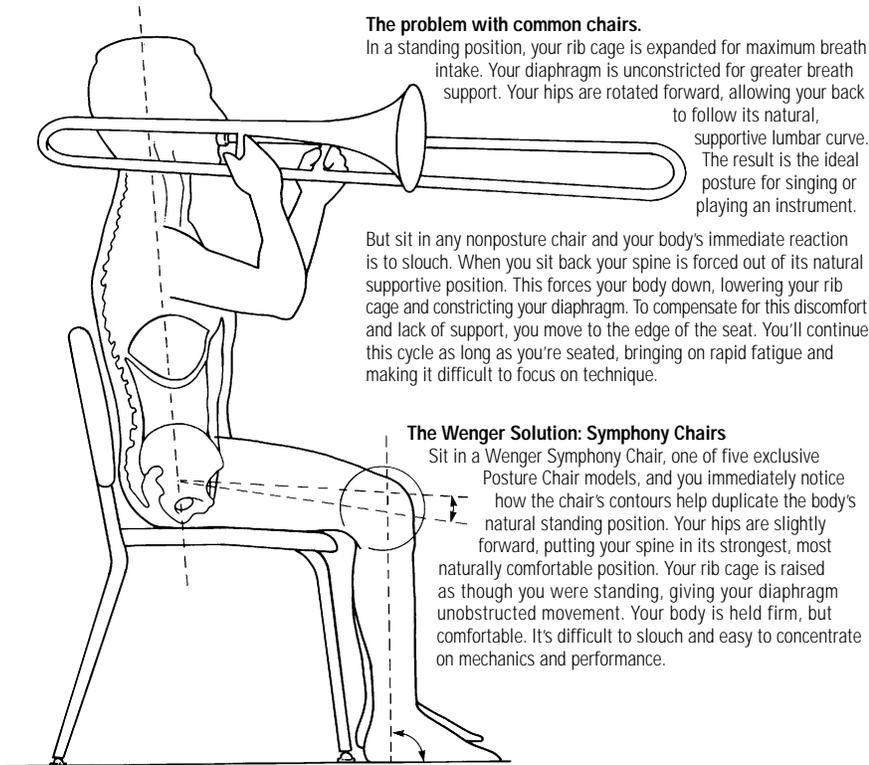

All these special features give the professional musician the benefits of comfort and long-term health for long practices and performances. And most importantly for a long career.
